
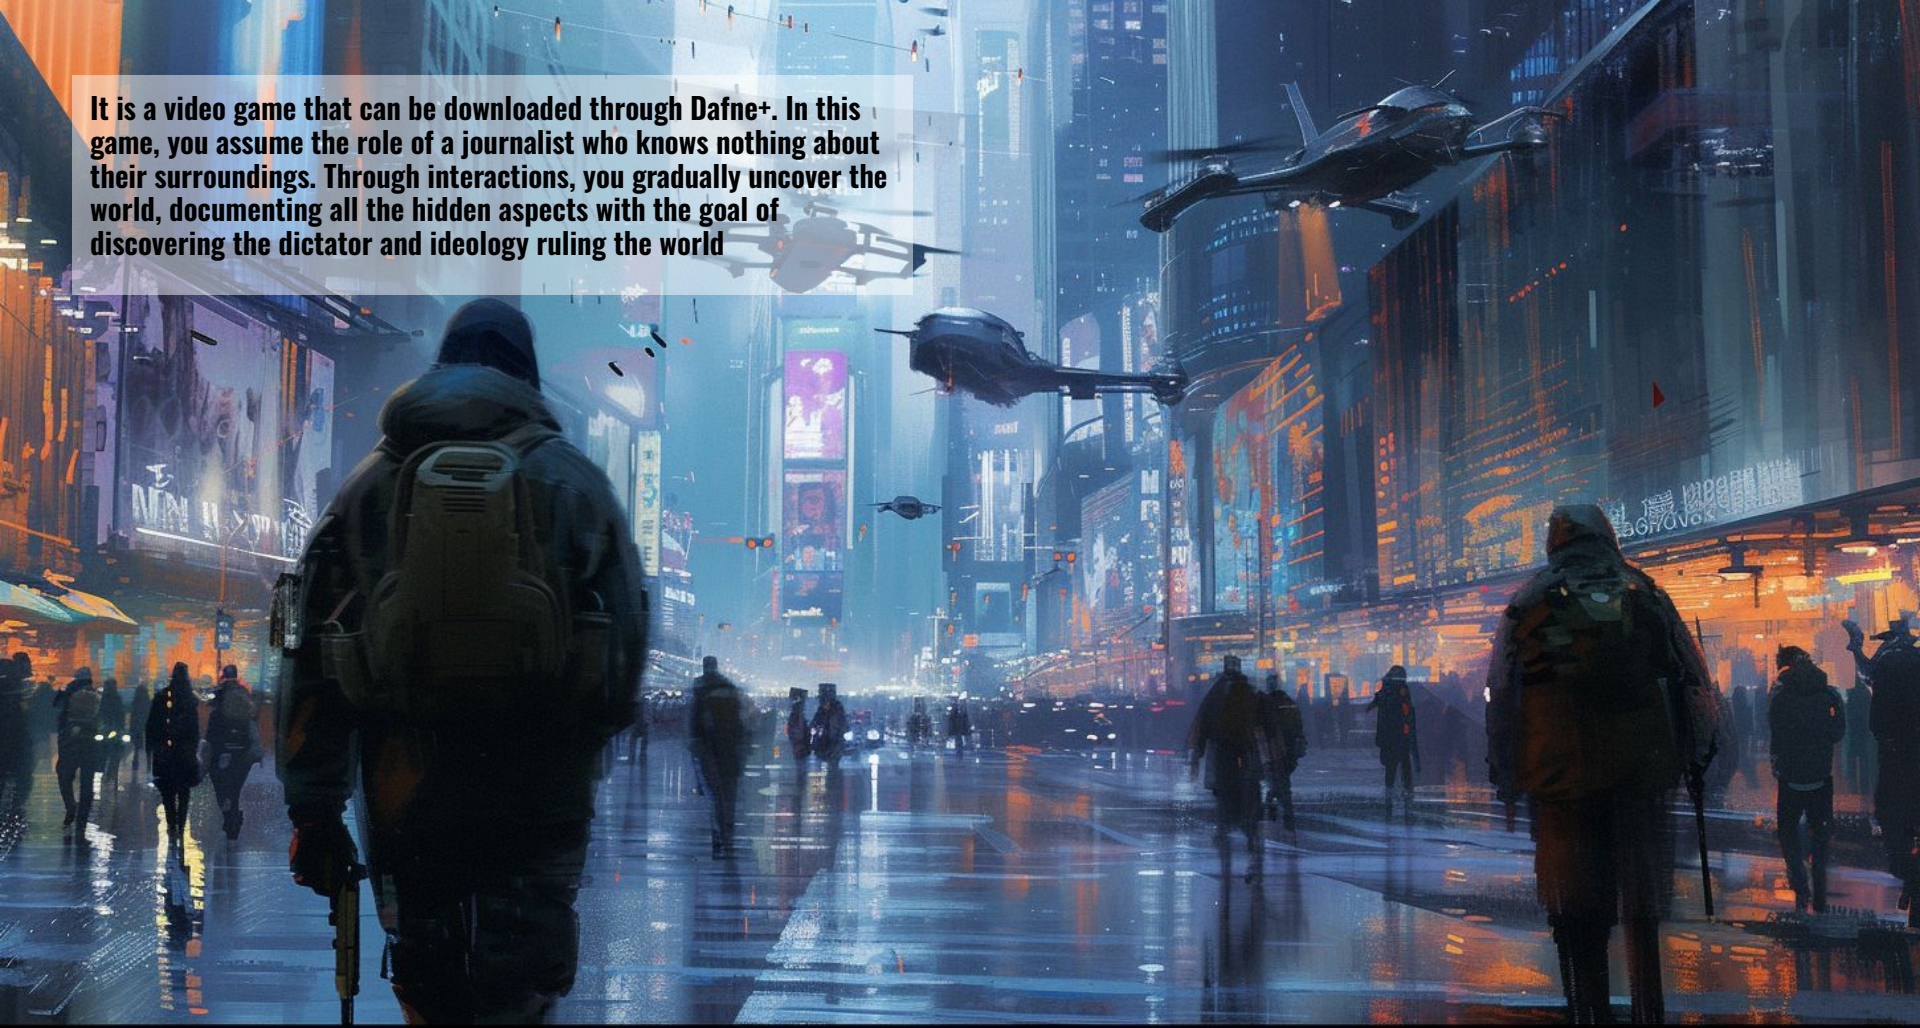
Fascination

Life under the regime

Our project aims to put an end to fascism. To achieve this, we propose an educational tool that allows individuals to experience what it's like to live in an authoritarian world.



It is a video game that can be downloaded through Dafne+. In this game, you assume the role of a journalist who knows nothing about their surroundings. Through interactions, you gradually uncover the world, documenting all the hidden aspects with the goal of discovering the dictator and ideology ruling the world

Player Interactions

Player: "I've heard you're fighting against the regime. Isn't that dangerous?"

Rebel: "Dangerous? Living under this regime is dangerous. Fighting back is our only hope."

Player: "[Choose Response] A) What are you hoping to achieve? B) Aren't you afraid? C) How can you fight such a powerful regime?"

Rebel (if A chosen): "We want freedom, truth, a chance for everyone to live without fear. We're not just fighting for ourselves; we're fighting for the future."

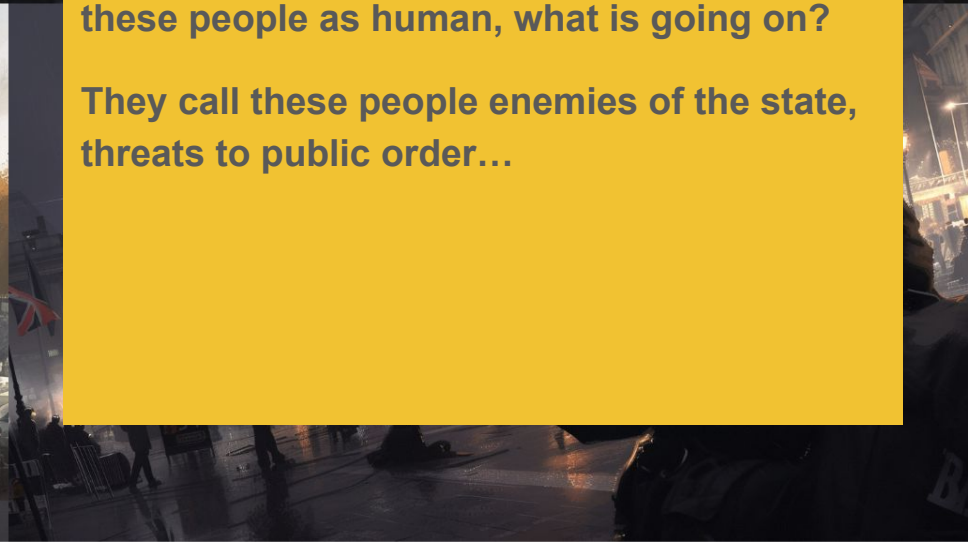
Player: "But how do you plan to bring about this change?"

Rebel: "It starts with small acts of defiance. Graffiti, secret meetings, spreading the truth. We're also trying to hack into the state's propaganda to broadcast our message."

Player: "[Choose Response] A) That sounds risky. B) How can I help? C) Do you have many supporters?"

Rebel (if B chosen): "We need information. Anything you can find out about the regime's plans, weaknesses. We need to be one step ahead."

Player Observations



Player observations:

Peaceful protesters are being attacked by police for holding up signs?

I asked an officer and they don't even see these people as human, what is going on?

They call these people enemies of the state, threats to public order…
